This is possible by the use of total bypass with membrane oxygenators and/or active hemodilution of the perfusate. At the same time, this principle requires a careful monitoring of cardiac function and metabolism during hypothermic circulatory arrest. In this paper, the authors evaluate the various methods of performing and monitoring hypothermic circulatory arrest and describe the clinical experience gained during their application.Q: How do i know the number of devices connected to ios app and switch them after a given period I have an app that allows users to post videos to social network. Users need to give the post a time to remain on the network. How do I tell from an IOS app that the post is running low and so a new post must be submitted. I am not sure what to check to see if the post is being posted. I want to be able to detect new posts being created on an app and then respond by changing the thread (the page i post to) to be a different thread (say that a different post has been posted 648931e174
